Auditor General releases report summarizing recent work

VICTORIA – Auditor General John Doyle has released his latest report, Summary Report: Results of Completed Projects, which includes summaries of six different pieces of work.

“While my traditional public reports are the most visible output of my Office’s efforts, they do not account for all the work that is done,” said Doyle. “To be accountable for work that does not result in a traditional report, we summarize the most important findings and recommendations from these performance audits and reviews in an annual public summary report.”

In total, six recent projects are summarized in the report:

- An audit of government's fee-setting and approval process.
- An audit of the Family Maintenance Enforcement Program (FMEP).
- Preliminary observations and findings from an audit of government's management of the student loan program.
- An examination of the public post-secondary accountability framework's design and operation.
- The first phase of an audit of school district accountability for the effectiveness of special education services that focused on three school districts.
- The results of a high-level security audit of wireless access points at the University of British Columbia and Camosun College.

"Publishing this summary report allows me to recognize the good work being done in government, which may not otherwise be introduced into the public realm," said Doyle. "All of my Office’s work is made the more successful by building and maintaining positive working relationships with the public servants of this Province."
